PROVIDENCE COLLEGE (RI) LAUNCHES NEW INTERNATIONAL STUDENT WEBSITE

Providence College's new International Student website details the application process for students applying from outside the United States.

Providence College (PC) is still welcoming applications for the Class of 2018 through our Regular Decision deadline of January 15, 2014.

This year, PC celebrated the opening of the College's new signature academic building, the Ruane Center for the Humanities. Symbolizing PC's commitment to the liberal arts, the humanities, and undergraduate education, the building is home to PC's hallmark Development of Western Civilization Program as well as the Liberal Arts Honors Program.

Another exciting milestone was the one-year anniversary of the Providence College School of Business (PCSB) receiving the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) accreditation. The distinction is considered the "gold standard" for college business programs, achieved by 30 percent in the United States and only 5 percent worldwide.

The Providence College School of Business embraces both the traditional business disciplines as well as incorporates the benefits of a liberal arts education. It provides a values-based education and allows students to think critically and harness self-reflection while focusing on a real-world experience. Small class sizes and student engagement in the PCSB are a key component of the Providence College business curriculum.
