We are honored to share a success story from one of our EducationUSA advisees.

Congratulations, Bianka!

Each day this National Distance Learning Week, we share an Andrews online student story:

"I chose Andrews University because my sister lives near campus. When we couldn't move to the US this year due to coronavirus, I chose to start my studies online. I chose Introduction to Psychology, Foundations in Youth Ministry and World Religions first because I would like to be a school psychologist in a Christian high school. I most appreciate that my teachers are faithful Seventh-day Adventists, who share their faith in God with their students. It's a great gift to receive encouragements, prayers, and Sabbath greetings from my teachers. Besides that, all student supporters are very helpful, especially my Academic Advisor."

Bianka Rinko, is taking undergraduate online courses from Hungary, until she can pursue her main campus program of study.

Take a class. Earn a degree. Online.
Because life keeps going, we go where you go.

While COVID-19 keeps me in Hungary, I can still have an Andrews experience online because of amazing teachers and student support.

Financial Aid Glossary

Credits, priority date, bursar – you might come across some unfamiliar terms when researching financial aid. Keep this glossary handy as you work on finding your best fit.

Bursar (n.) – the school official responsible for handling billing and payments for tuition, fees, housing, and other financial affairs

Cost of attendance (n.) – The total amount of expenses before financial aid. It includes tuition and fees, room and board, books and supplies, and living expenses.

Credits (n.) – Units that most colleges and universities use to record the completion of courses (with passing grades) that are required for an academic degree.

Financial aid (n.) – A general term that includes all types of money, loans and work-study programs offered to a student to help pay tuition, fees, and living expenses.

Financial aid award letters (n.) – Financial aid award letters are created by each institution to provide information on the cost of attendance at the school. It details any grants, scholarships, work-study opportunities, and loans the student is eligible to receive.

Priority date (n.) – The date by which your application must be received to be given the strongest consideration. Since financial aid is often limited, meeting the priority date is important to be eligible to receive funds.

Scholarship (n.) – Financial aid that doesn't have to be paid back. Scholarships may be awarded based on a variety of criteria.
