EducationUSA Hungary NewsL: Issue 3/2019

Gaining Insight to U.S. Studies

Starting the selection and application process for a U.S. university can be overwhelming. Thankfully, the EducationUSA Office is here to help you every step of the way. However, we aren't your only resource. As more and more Hungarians study in the United States, there is a growing network of Hungarian alumni. These are people who have already successfully navigated the process which you may just be starting. This month we are highlighting two Hungarian students who have, or are, studying at top-ranked university in the United States: Purdue. One of the students, Máté, was a Fulbright scholar and alumnus of Purdue, and served as a mentor to János, who was just beginning the application process. Read more about their successful journey and academic studies in STEM in the U.S. here: http://www.educationusa.hu/?page_id=1001

If you are still deciding on whether or not you want to study in the United States, EducationUSA Academy is a great way to immerse yourself in the U.S. educational environment short-term. The EducationUSA Academy is a pre-college academic enrichment program for international high school students offering specialized college preparatory content, college-level writing workshops, campus visits, and cultural activities.
