DEPAUL UNIVERSITY UPDATE

Greetings from Chicago!

DePaul University offers bachelors and masters degree programs in over 200 subjects, and 6 Doctoral programs. The College is fully accredited by the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools and also holds other programmatic and specialized accreditation. Taking advantage of our urban campuses gives our students access to social, cultural, and business opportunities right outside their door. We are a diverse community with a superior mix of cultures, histories, and ways of thinking.

As an international applicant, you have a lot to consider. We are here to help. Our office conducts admissions for undergraduate students and provides credential evaluations for the different graduate programs. We are available to advise and assist you with your entire admission process. If you have additional questions, please send us an e-mail or request more information at INTLAPP@depaul.edu. Making the decision about where to study is very important. We hope our site will help you make the right one. If you are ready to apply to DePaul, please take the first step <http://international.depaul.edu/admission/Admission/index.asp>

MENTOR YOURSELF

July 29, 2009

By Mary Jane Hurst

Having served as a mentor, coordinated mentoring programs, and led mentoring discussions at conferences over many years, I can attest to this simple truth: Professionals who are provided with helpful guidance avoid unnecessary mistakes and distracting anxieties and thereby do their best work.

Unfortunately, many individuals do not have access to personal mentoring. Therefore, in the interest of helping people help themselves, I offer the following five core strategies for developing a more satisfying and successful academic career. You can be your own mentor.
