AMERICAN UNIVERSITY MERIT-BASED SCHOLARSHIPS

American University is a private doctoral institution situated in a residential neighborhood of northwest Washington, D.C. Their student body is cosmopolitan and globally diverse, with all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and 139 countries represented. Seven percent of undergraduates and 11 percent of graduate students are international. The university's mission is carried out by 798 full-time faculty and 1,525 full-time staff. Ninety-four percent of full-time faculty holds the highest degree in their field. Among 565 adjunct faculty are policy makers, diplomats, journalists, artists, writers, scientists, and business leaders.

American University offers merit-based scholarships for international students. Scholarships are highly competitive and based on a combination of outstanding academic achievement, excellent communication skills in English, leadership, volunteerism, and community service. Scholarships range from U.S. $6,000 to U.S. $27,000 per academic year. These funds are renewable for all four years of study based on successful continued academic performance.

CARROLL COLLEGE ACADEMIC MERIT-BASED SCHOLARSHIPS

Carroll College's philosophy is to help students realize what kind of life they can lead. As a Catholic Diocesan college, Carroll College is uniquely positioned to combine the spiritual with the academic, the contemplation with the action. Not only do they encourage students to reflect on their place in the world, but encourage them to act to make the world a better place.

Carroll College offers academic merit-based scholarships to international students. To be considered for an academic merit award, students must submit official SAT or ACT exam results. Transfer students are considered for merit awards based upon eligible transfer coursework from an accredited institution. ESL courses do not factor into transfer GPA calculations for transfer merit awards.

UNIVERSITY OF BRIDGEPORT MERIT-BASED SCHOLARSHIPS

The University of Bridgeport offers career-oriented undergraduate, graduate and professional degrees and programs for people seeking personal and professional growth. The University promotes academic excellence, personal responsibility, and commitment to service. Distinctive curricula in an international, culturally diverse supportive learning environment prepare graduates for life and leadership in an increasingly interconnected world.

The University of Bridgeport offers scholarships to international students for graduate studies and graduate health sciences studies. There are three award amounts—$3,000, $4,000 and $5,000—that are awarded for the first year of study only, and the amount of the award is determined by a student's academic achievement and test scores. Students must be an applicant for one of the following programs: MBA, East Asian and Pacific Rim Studies, Global Development and Peace, Global Media and Communication Studies, and a master's level program in the School of Engineering. There is no separate scholarship application; students will automatically be considered for a scholarship at the time of admission.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN-FLINT RALPH M. & EMMALYN E. FREEMAN SCHOLARSHIP

Since 1956, the University of Michigan-Flint has embraced the importance of "doing" as fundamental to each student's personal, professional, and academic growth. UM-Flint faculty from over 100 areas of study pour their expertise and creativity into the development of research and service-learning projects that match course curriculum with today's most-pressing issues. Such projects bring learning to life, address community needs, and fulfill students' desires to contribute to "something bigger than themselves."

The University of Michigan-Flint offers the Ralph M. and Emmalyn E. Freeman International Graduate Student Scholarship. Applicants must be admitted to a University of Michigan-Flint graduate program, completed all prerequisite courses, and earned a minimum of twelve (12) hours of graduate credit at the University of Michigan-Flint. Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.5 grade point average as a UM-Flint graduate student.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY HOSTS WEBINARS ON LAW STUDY IN THE U.S.

Georgetown Law invites you to join a webinar to learn more about law study in the U.S.: What types of programs are available, what are schools looking for in applicants, what does the application process involve, and – perhaps most importantly – why go to the United States for a J.D. degree? In today’s global environment, lawyers throughout the world must become familiar with multiple legal systems and international legal issues. A Juris Doctor (J.D.) degree prepares you to practice law in the United States, and can also help those qualified to practice law outside the U.S. to better serve U.S. clients and businesses.

You will also hear information about Georgetown’s curriculum and J.D. degree program, and life as a law student in Washington, D.C. Georgetown University Law Center has a growing international student body, with J.D. students from around the world joining U.S. educated students to study law in the capital of the United States. Webinar attendees will also have the opportunity to pose questions during the presentation.

FULL SAIL UNIVERSITY'S INTERNATIONAL STUDENT SOCIETY SUPPORTS OLYMPICS CELEBRATION

One of the biggest supporters of Full Sail’s current Olympics Celebration is the International Student Society, a social organization of more than 400 international students and graduates. Members of the society have helped organize and volunteer at many of the Olympics Celebration events, including last week’s International Fair and this week’s Fun Games Day.

“Our goal is for the international students to feel like they have a family away from home, and to be able to network with students from all over the world,” says Valerie Calderone, an International Admissions Representative and one of the club’s sponsors.

LYNN UNIVERSITY INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS TO WITNESS 2012 U.S. PRESIDENTIAL DEBATE

Just weeks before the semester during which Lynn University will host the final 2012 U.S. presidential debate on foreign policy, the school is projecting an increase in enrollment—with international students representing one of the largest areas of growth.

“The increase in international students is great timing since they will be part of a historic event that will help them better understand the American political process,” said Gareth Fowles, Vice President of Enrollment Management. “They will have a unique perspective that can add a lot to the value to the university hosting the debate.”

UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA MEDICAL CAMPUS HOSTS INTERNATIONAL STUDENT RESEARCH FORUM

With the Internet, a scientist from China wouldn't necessarily have to fly to Omaha to communicate with a scientist there. But face-to-face meetings can strengthen the connections between researchers and lead to collaborations and friendships that can benefit both scientists for their entire careers. Seventy-five students from China, Australia, Japan and the U.S. are on the University of Nebraska Medical Center campus for the eighth annual International Student Research Forum, which began Tuesday.

This is the second time UNMC has hosted the forum; it was in Tokyo last year. “The best thing that comes out of this is the connections you make,” said Malhotra, who grew up in California. Science already is a collaborative field, he said, but mostly among researchers within the states. It's becoming easier and more feasible, he said, to collaborate with people internationally.
