FONTBONNE UNIVERSITY ANNOUNCES B.S. PROGRAM IN CYBER SECURITY

Fontbonne University in St. Louis is excited to announce its newest undergraduate program: Bachelor of Science in Cyber Security. Within this full-time degree program, students will take a foundation of mathematics and computer science courses, as well as a series of courses developed specifically for the cyber security program, including Network and Security Management, Wireless Communications and Mobile Forensics, and Computer Forensics.

“Our program will teach students to examine the weaknesses associated with database systems, web applications and operating systems, how to find them, and how to recover data corrupted when systems are compromised. Our graduates will be qualified to analyze, plan and implement security strategies to safeguard organizations and data.” said Yi Yang, cyber security program director, who holds a doctorate in computer science and engineering from Penn State. Based on Bureau of Labor Statistics, employment in the area of cyber security is projected to grow 22 percent by 2020. This degree will prepare students to work as a cyber security professional in public, private or government settings.
